

JENNY GATHRIGHT

2727 29th St NW, Washington, District of Columbia 20008

Cell: 240-778-3520 - jenny.gathright@gmail.com

EDUCATION:

A.B.: Economics, Harvard University Class of 2016

Harvard Foundation for Intercultural and Race Relations Distinguished Senior Award, for consistent contributions to intercultural relations at Harvard

Lowell House James Buell Munn Book Prize, given to a senior with an outstanding academic record and strong literary talent

RELEVANT SKILLS:

- Project Management
- Writing on Deadline/Editing
- Managing Branded Social Media Accounts
- Audio Editing
- Photoshop, Basic Coding (HTML/CSS)

RELEVANT WORK EXPERIENCE:

09/2016 to Current

News Assistant, NPR/NPR One – Washington, DC

Curates and produces audio storytelling for NPR One, a project that blends NPR's editorial and app development to create on-demand radio. Runs NPR One's Twitter presence, works with reporters and podcast producers on original content for NPR One, presents data-driven insights to desks and reporters on story structure. On weekends and evenings, fills in as a breaking news blogger/reporter and writes features and reviews for NPR Music.

04/2018

Presenter, Pop Conference 2018 – Seattle, Wash.

Presented on a panel titled "Contested Masculinities Across Pop." My paper, "What They Say: A Look At Tyler And Frank From Odd Future To The Odd Present," used black queer theory and critical feminist theory to explore the "coming out" narratives that have accompanied both Tyler, The Creator and Frank Ocean.

07/2016 to 09/2016

Editorial Intern, Honeyguide Media – New York, N.Y.

Worked as part of a small, dedicated team building two Medium-native publications, Bright and The Development Set, on education and global health. Started Twitter accounts for both publications, wrote a weekly newsletter for both publications, copy-edited, did big-picture research and brainstorming about the future of the brand and got to do substantive, back-and-forth editing with freelance contributors doing longform reporting.

08/2015 to 06/2016

Berta Greenwald Leducky Fellow, Harvard Magazine – Cambridge, Mass.

Awarded a paid fellowship with Harvard Magazine's editorial staff for the academic year. Wrote three pieces for "The Undergraduate" column in addition to other writing projects for the magazine and website.